June 15, 1775 "" The battle of Bunker Hill took place, the first great battle in the American revolutionary war. While the use of Hill bunker as the position of the battle is common, most of the struggle took place on the Breed hill. At this moment, after the settlers learned the British were planning to send troops to occupy the hills surrounding Boston, about 1,000 soldiers of the continental army under the command of Colonel William Prescott built earthly fortifications on the Breed hill and waited for the strength enemies. The British won the battle, of course, as they had more ammunition and experience when it came to fighting. But their victory came with a record of 1,004 victims compared to the 367 of the Patriots. The struggle was a moral recall for the Americans, as they understood that the war in the colonies was not easy and that it would cost. 5 July 1775 â € "The continental congress has extended the Olive-Brach petition, a proposal that asks the British crown to recognize American rights and to end intolerable acts. In return, there would be a fire. But the English king Giorgio III refused it. August 23, 1775 "" Giorgio III declared that the 13 British colonies were in open rebellion.
